PORT ARTHUR JUNK REPORTS

RUSSIANS SAID TO BE LEAVING THEIR LINES AND OFFERING THEMSELVES AS PRISONERS TO THE JAPANESE—OTHERS WHO ARE DETERMINED TO DIE SENDING FAREWELL LETTERS HOME BY CHINESE JUNKS.

The recent Japanese summons to surrender was not officially effective, but seems to have been privately efficacious. A message from Sasebo tells us that since the issue of this invitation Russian soldiers have continued to surrender at the rate of 10 to 20 a day. Taking advantage of their patrol duty these Russian traitors leave the fighting line as if they were scouts and on approaching the Japanese outpost line they are threatened by Japanese soldiers with rifles when the Russian will hurriedly run within a closer distance and salute the Japanese, giving up their own arms. The Japanese will then beckon the Russians and the latter are pleasantly taken prisoners. This is said to be the general process of surrender now being practiced in the Port Arthur direction.

A Sasebo dispatch says that a Russian Lieut.-Colonel has escaped from Port Arthur and has surrendered to the Japanese army. He is reported to be a Russian Jew. He was opposed to the action of General Stoessel who refused to avail himself of the humane invitation of the Japanese Emperor to spare the non-combatants. It is reported that he is now at Dalny under Japanese protection.

The Russian reply to the Japanese offer to spare non-combatants at Port Arthur is reported to have been couched in courteous terms. It pointed out among other things the difficulty of taking the non-combatants outside of the city. It is reported that since the time they refused to accept the offer a large number of non-combatants have escaped in junks. Refugees are examined by the Japanese Navy outside Port Arthur before they are set free.

An official speaking to an interviewer at Kure said some Russian troops at Port Arthur frequently sally forth wearing shirts and trousers only, and they offer a most determined resistance. Another person who has returned from the vicinity said that the Russians are sparingly using the smokeless powder. The Russians have become very clever in resisting the Japanese attack. They do not return the fire of the Japanese unless they are in very advantageous positions.

A person who has returned to Moji from the vicinity of Port Arthur via Dalny said that fire is constantly occurring in the city of Port Arthur but the large buildings are mostly safe. The non-combatants appear to have effectively taken shelter. The Russian troops are offering the most stubborn resistance in three different directions. They are confident that they will be able to maintain themselves for four weeks at least since the Japanese commenced the general attack.

Many Russian soldiers at Port Arthur are determined to die and have entrusted to Chinamen who have escaped to Chefoo farewell letters to post home. A number of Russians are quoted as having expressed the belief that the Japanese will be compelled to direct heavy gun fire for over three weeks on Port Arthur before they can prudently essay to charge it. They concede the ultimate fall of the stronghold.

In the battle of August 10th the Mikasa on the Japanese side chiefly suffered, in the way of wounded, including Prince Lieut.-Commander Fushimi, Jr., three other lieut.-commanders, one lieutenant, and one sub-lieutenant. At that time Lieut.-Commander Uyeda was on the left side of the Mikasa's fore-bridge accompanied by Sub-Lieutenant Nakazawa. Admiral Togo was standing in the center, in line with Rear-Admiral Shimamura, Chief Staff Officer, and Capt. Ijichi, in command of the Mikasa, Lieut.-Commander Ogura being to their right. When the light reached its height, the Russian squadron was observed ahead on the port side and the Japanese fleet was in position to pursue it. It was just then that a 12-inch Russian shell exploded on the fore port side. Its fragments were scattered about and struck many combatants, additionally affecting the fore-bridge. Lieut.-Commander Uyeda, who was on the left, sustained serious wounds in the upper part of his body, while Sub-Lieutenant Nakazawa was less severely injured, being about four yards behind. Fortunately Admiral Togo and Rear-Admiral Shimamura at the center were all safe, but Lieut.-Commander Ogura behind them was severely wounded in the loin. On inspecting the passage of fragments of the shell, which injured three officers on the bridge, it was found to represent a "semi-diamond," drawn between Commanders Uyeda and Ogura, making Lieutenant Nagazawa the center. The fact that Admiral Togo, and the chief staff officer had almost miraculously escaped any injury amid the other three is considered by the Japanese to have been effected by supernatural aid.

A Japanese fishing boat occupied by four men from Kokura, Kyushu, was blown up by a floating mine near Dalny on the 19th of August.

STATUS OF MILITIA

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 31.—The War Department, upon the request of General Corbin commanding the troops at maneuvers in Virginia, has rendered an opinion in the matter of jurisdiction over the National Guard organizations, holding that the militia troops when participating in an encampment, maneuvers and field instruction with troops of the regular army are not in the service of the United States, within the meaning of the militia act, and that discipline in the militia is to be enforced through state authority.

In the opinion on this question rendered by Acting Judge Advocate General Porter and approved by the War Department, it is recited: "The act is understood to provide that as a condition of their being allowed to participate with troops of the regular army they shall submit themselves to the command of the officer in command of such troops, but it is not understood that as an incident of such command, discipline in the militia, is to be enforced by United States authority. On the contrary it is believed that such discipline is to be enforced through state authority, and that offenses are to be tried under the rules prescribed by the state to which the particular organization of the militia may belong. In other words, it is understood that the militia is still the militia of the state and subject to its control and instant withdrawal from the maneuvers."

It is held that for the militia to be in the service of the United States within the meaning of the militia act it must be called forth as authorized by the Constitution, the authority of the United States being confined to calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections and repel invasions.

The department holds, therefore, that the enforcement of order in the militia from any state rests with the officer in command of such militia, to whom all offenses should be reported, and whose duty it is to see that the offenders are brought before the appropriate tribunal under the rules prescribed by the state for the government of its militia.

An opinion rendered by the judge advocate general's office in connection with the participation of Michigan militia troops in the joint maneuvers at West Point, Ky., is referred to, in which it is stated: "It has never been regarded by this department that section 15 of the general militia law conferred any authority upon the President or Secretary of War to issue orders to the organized militia in time of peace, or, indeed, at any time, or any condition save in the cases enumerated in the Constitution and expressly provided for in sections 4, 5 and 6 of the act of January 21, 1903." It is further stated in that previous opinion that the militia troops of the state of Michigan did not pass at any time under the control of the War Department.

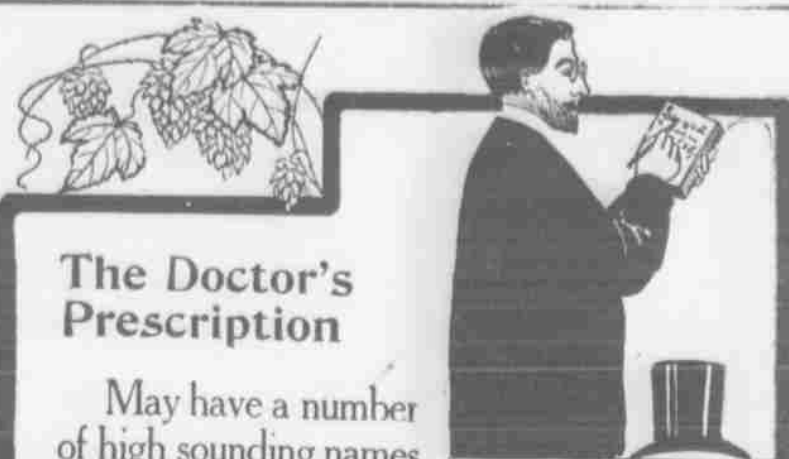

who left here with the "Fiddle Dee Dee" company, Maude Amber and her satellites have scored a triumph in the far away island country and have been the rage since their first performance.

The Johnnies of Sydney have opened their eyes at the beauty and dash and style of the chorus of the frisky burlesque, and straightway have been lost in admiration. Night after night the stalls at the Palace Theater have been filled by the same male worshippers, so that the suggestion was facetiously made "at season" tickets should be issued to those so constant in their devotion. If any company prides itself upon a hit they have made, then the "Fiddle Dee Dee" troupe can do so.

TWO VERDICTS YESTERDAY

BROWN QUICKLY WINS HIS SUIT AGAINST MRS. BRAYMER AND HOSOI IS CONVICTED.

It took the court a very short time to decide the suit of Cecil Brown against Mrs. Kate Braymer yesterday afternoon. The suit was that for the recovery of $350, the amount of a note, and interest, the note having been accidentally burned. George A. Davis for the defense asked for a non-suit which was denied. Judge Robinson instructed the jury to find for the plaintiff and $175 was accordingly given.

Hosoi the Japanese accused of receiving stolen property was found guilty in Judge Gear's court yesterday afternoon. His attorney Cathcart noted exceptions and gave notice of motion for a new trial.

Judge De Bolt yesterday afternoon dismissed the action of L. C. Camacho against High Sheriff Arthur M. Brown for $5000 damages on the ground that the statute of limitations had applied. An exception was noted so that Camacho may appeal if he wishes. Camacho's suit was brought on the ground that he had been ill treated by a policeman when he was arrested some two years ago on suspicion of being connected with a dynamite plot.
